Intern (m/f) Strategy, Markets & Development

thyssenkrupp AG, Essen

The corporate function Strategy, Markets & Development is a young and dynamic team that drives strategic initiatives at thyssenkrupp. At the core of our activities stands the transformation toward a strong industrial company that offers solutions for the issues and trends of the 21st century. We are based at our headquarters in Essen and cover a variety of strategic and growth topics. In our day-to-day life, we collaborate closely with different functions across all of thyssenkrupp's business areas and regions to jointly drive topics throughout the organization.

Your responsibilities

- Support projects to develop our group-wide strategy and growth initiatives by actively engaging with our business areas and regions
- Assist in research and analysis of our competitive environment and generate insights into relevant industries, regional markets, competitors and customers
- Help us drive the development of concepts and analytic models and support the preparation of team meetings and management presentations
- Collaborate in the global Strategy, Markets & Development network to leverage insights from all business areas and regions to drive and further expand the successful development of our strategic initiatives

Your profile

- You are currently pursuing a bachelor's (at least 3rd year) or master's degree or are in-between those two ('gap year'), e.g. in business, economics, engineering or related fields of study
- You bring along first professional experience, ideally with a leading international industrial company or consulting firm
- You have a passion for strategic topics and feel comfortable working in a fast-paced environment, where you will need conceptual, analytic and implementation skills
- You are open-minded and entrepreneurial and apply these qualities effectively to solve complex problems and proactively design new solutions
- You have a confident and convincing appearance and feel comfortable interacting with a diverse group of colleagues and the management team
- You are used to working with Microsoft Powerpoint and Excel, (VBA) programming skills are an additional asset
- You have time to support us for at least three months

Our offer to you

At thyssenkrupp we give you the freedom to expand your horizons – with flexible work time models, international teams and attractive working conditions and social benefits.

We work together closely and respect each other; collegial collaboration and mutual respect are something we have been practicing for more than 200 years. If they are just as important to you as they are to us, then apply now!

We look forward to receiving your application, which you can submit online using our applicant management system.
