

CR Berlin Study Group

“Interdisciplinary research on CR: joining forces or widening the gap?”

Round Table Discussion and Paper Development Workshop

Call for Papers

On July 19, a special CR Study Group event will be organized around a round table discussion together with an extended format paper development workshop.

Aims

Since its inaugural meeting in March 2011, the CR Berlin study group has emerged as an important forum bringing together Berlin scholars on corporate responsibility from a variety of disciplines. The study group has worked in various formats including hosting international guests, paper presentations, “world café” sessions to explore collaborations among group members, round table debates with practitioners and open discussion forums on cutting edge issues in CR research.

This workshop aims to deepen this interdisciplinary dialogue with a special event. A keynote round table debate will explore the interconnections of CR research in business studies, political science, economics, and sociology around the theme “Interdisciplinary research on CR: joining forces or widening the gap?” The main workshop will be focused on the presentation and development of papers intended for journal publication.

Those interested in presenting a paper should submit a title and abstract (no more than one page) by the dates below. Submissions should be limited to unpublished papers, although papers under review or undergoing a revise and submit are very welcome. Upon acceptance, full papers will be submitted and made available in advance of the workshop. Paper presentations by the author will be limited to 20 minutes followed by comments from a discussant (roughly 10 minutes) and then open discussion.
